

J Perinat Med. 1990;18(3):233-5.

Intrauterine death due to fetomaternal hemorrhage despite successful treatment of fetal anemia.

Tannirandorn Y, Nicolini U, Nicolaidis P, Nasrat H, Letsky EA, Rodeck CH.

Fetal Medicine Unit, Queen Charlotte's and Chelsea Hospital, London, U.K.

Abstract

A case of hydrops fetalis caused by massive fetomaternal hemorrhage was initially successfully treated by intrauterine intravascular transfusion. Unexplained intrauterine death occurred 2 weeks afterwards. The investigation of fetomaternal hemorrhage by fetal blood sampling and the management are discussed